I found See Saw girl to be a very quick read with "friendly" writing for those who just aren't into history. It'll be my book to "hook" them into the genre. A Long Walk to Water, in my personal opinion, would be the next step up for these students because of the way in which the author chose to write the story.

While Salva was living in New York, the war in Sudan was over but there was a new problem: there was no water to be found. People have to walk miles to get water, at least 2 times a day. Salva decided to do something good for his people, so he went back to Sudan and made a fountain, in which there was fresh, clean water.
