Permeable Paving Options for Residential Driveways

A better long-term solution to using grass on a driveway is to just add two thin paving strips to provide a path for car tires. You could use a permeable material such as gravel or impermeable concrete for the strips. If you choose the latter, you will still substantially reduce runoff from your property. Two 18-in. wide paving strips produce much less runoff than a single 12-ft. wide concrete slab. The bulk of the driveway will remain grass.
